

CONTRIBUTORS

BETTY J. BELANUS is a graduate student in the Folklore Department at Indiana University, Bloomington. Her interests are folk art and craft, material culture, American folk cultural history, and historic photography.

LOIS KUTER is a graduate student in anthropology at Indiana University, Bloomington, presently preparing for doctoral dissertation research in Brittany, France, on the definition of Breton music and Breton ethnic identity.

VIRGINIA POLIOUDAKIS LOWE is a graduate student in the Folklore Department at Indiana University, Bloomington. She is assistant editor of Folklore Forum and is editorial assistant for Indiana Folklore.

WOLFGANG MIEDER is professor of German and chairman of the Department of German and Russian at the University of Vermont. His major research interests are international proverb studies and German folklore.

ROGER Dev. RENWICK and JOHN MICHAEL VLACH both hold Ph.D. degrees in folklore, Renwick from the University of Pennsylvania, Vlach from Indiana University. They are both assistant professors at the University of Texas, Austin, and members of the Graduate Studies Committee in Folklore which oversees the graduate program in folklore. Vlach, whose appointment is in the anthropology department, has special research interests in material culture and African folklife; Renwick, of the English department, in folksong and in interpretive analyses of folklore materials.